Cover illustration: Caribou or reindeer are arguably the quintessential arctic animal, and they have been featured more than any other image over the past 50 years on Arctic Anthropology covers. To celebrate the journal's 50th year of publication, nine different images of caribou and reindeer (and one moose) have been reproduced around a map of the circumpolar region. Starting at the top and moving clockwise, the images are from the covers of volume 38, 20, 3, 22, 7, 49, 4, 9, 6, and 42. Cover artwork produced by John Darwent.
